

NC Healthcare Transformation 101: for Medicaid Beneficiaries

Overview

If you are confused about changes to Medicaid in North Carolina, you're not alone! Last year the state began Medicaid Transformation, which would change the way that you receive and use Medicaid. It will not change your eligibility. In the old plan, you could use your card at any medical office that accepted Medicaid, then the office would bill the state. With Medicaid Transformation, each family will choose a plan from several companies who would manage the care you receive. Just before the changes went into effect, disagreements over the state budget suspended the program.

How will this affect you?

Last October, you probably got a letter in the mail that told you that your healthcare was changing and asked you to choose a health plan. When the state suspended the change, you probably got a second letter that told you to continue using your old card and plan. Right now, nothing has changed and you can continue receiving your Medicaid benefits exactly as you have been. They will not restart the transition until there is a new state budget in place.

When Medicaid transition begins again, you will receive another letter in the mail with more information and next steps.

How Can I Prepare?

Watch the state legislature for changes. You can follow the latest updates on the NC Medicaid site.

Keep using your benefits in the same way you always have, but share this information with friends and family.
